Married Overseas

DEDELS-PICKETT

A wedding of interest to many in Didsbury and district, took place "somewhere in England", on March 20, when Miss Joan Pickett became the bride of Dr. "Allie" Dedels, youngest son of Mr. A. H. Dedels and the late Mrs. Dedels.

Interesting to know, was that the groom's two brothers, Gnr. Earl and Tpr. "Howie" Dedels, were able to get leave to attend the wedding. Gnr. Earl acted as best man,

Edmonton Woman In Enemy Camp

Mrs. Garry Morris, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLeod, Edmonton pioneers, and neice of Mrs. E. G. Ranton, is now held by the Japanese in an internment camp at Baguio in the Philippines, according to word received by her sisters.

The word from a New York organization known as the Relief for Americans in the Philippines, came through an unidentified English woman who had been repatriated.

There was no mention of Mr. Morris or their children all living in the Philippines at the time of the Japanese invasion.

The communication said health conditions were excellent in the Japanese internment camp. There were few cases of dysentery and these were treated in hospital. Missionaries who were permanent residents of Baguio had been released by the Japanese to continue their work.

Two meals a day were served and the food was good.

Victory Bond Facts

Victory Bonds are Canada's safest investment for your savings.

Victory Bond owners can get cash for them as quickly and easily as they can withdraw cash from a savings account.

If Victory Bonds are purchased on the installment plan and a personal emergency arises, the owner can sell his bond and have the payments he has made immediately refunded.

When you buy a Victory Bond you help to prevent the cost of living rising by maintaining the price ceiling on food, clothing and other essentials.

You also help to preserve the value of wages and savings.

In addition to fighting weapons, Victory Bonds provide medical care, food, clothing and protection for the men and women in the Armed Forces.

United Church Notes.

The minister will take as his theme next Sunday, "Spiritual Contractors".

After the evening service there will be a meeting of the congregation to hear a report from the committee appointed to consider the matter of a new minister.

MAY 24th Holiday To Be Observed

In spite of the Dominion ruling that Victoria Day, May 24, is no longer a statutory holiday, the business establishments of Didsbury will observe the holiday, according to a survey taken by the "Pioneer" on Tuesday.

However, according to Mr. Dunlop, manager of the Royal Bank, the bank will be open for business, as they must observe the Dominion ruling.

It has been announced that most of the business houses in Calgary and Edmonton will be closed, and stores in most of the large cities in Canada will be closed.

It has not yet been decided as to whether the school will be closed. The matter will be decided at a meeting of the School Board, to be held on Monday.

Didsbury Jottings

By A.C.H.

Not only are Didsbury's young folks scattered all over the world, but we hear the "Pioneer" follows suit. Whoever you find a Didsbury service man or woman, not far away is the current issue of the "Pioneer". So they tell me.

Before the rains came, one day last week a gallant little Fordson pulled into our we garden plot. With ease and nonchalance, it turned over last year's cabbage stumps and buried last year's spinach. No perspiration dripped from its radiator; no kinks developed in its differential. It was as serene and contented when it buried the last tin can as it was when it started. Digging for Victory is very patriotic and all that, but it was more restful to sit on the kitchen table and watch the little tractor do the digging.

Now, if it ever does warm up, we can expect some nice early lettuce, if we plant lettuce.

On Saturday, May 22nd, as you walk down the main street, you will be confronted with a levy of beautiful girls. So, it isn't the Kellies come to town. It's the C.G.I.T. who will be collecting for the I.O.D.E. tag day. Later in the day I.O.D.E. members will take up the task. All money goes to buy necessities for Didsbury's own hospital. Not a cent of this money is spent on any other project. Not next Saturday, remember, but the Saturday after. We'll remind you again next week.

Heard that the Scouts might lose their good friend and Scoutmaster Mr. Eldon Scheurman. Tough luck, boys. Many of the boys successfully passed their Tenderfoot tests on Monday evening.

Need More Effort in Victory Loan Drive

The Victory Loan drive will be closed this Saturday night and for Didsbury and district to achieve its quota it is necessary that a further sum of $14,100 be subscribed before that time.

There is no question that this can be raised if everyone will do his or her share. The number of individual subscribers so far is not as large as in the previous loan. This is partly due, no doubt, to the difficulty experienced by the canvassers on account of bad roads.

The canvassers will make every effort to call on everyone in the district, but you can help greatly if you yourself, if you have not yet subscribed, will call at the loan headquarters or at the Royal Bank to make your purchase. The headquarters will be open until midnight Saturday, and the bank will be open until 4 p.m. to take care of those who cannot get in earlier.

Do not think because you can only buy a bond of the lower denomination that it is not important. Canada needs every dollar it is possible to raise.

If you find that it is possible to increase your purchase you are asked to do so. Mr. Reiber states that if you can, just give him a call and he will give it immediate attention.

Didsbury has not yet fallen down on any quota and we hope it will not do so this time.

Banquet in Honor of High School Students

On Tuesday evening, May 11, in honor of high school students, a splendid banquet was held in the Evangelical church parlors. Covers were laid for eighty five people.

After the banquet, Mr. J. Elgar Roberts of the Heaven and Home Hour, Calgary, gave a fine musical programme, to a large audience. Mr. Roberts played the vibraphone, accordion and piano. Dr. L. I. Seaman assisted with vocal selections. The programme was not only thoroughly enjoyed, but was a spiritual uplift to all present.

The members of the Ev. young people wish to express their appreciation to all those who helped make this banquet and programme a success.

Air Cadet Parade And Inspection

The annual inspection of the Didsbury Squadron of Air Cadets will be held next Monday, May 17, on the parade grounds at the school.

The general public is invited to witness this parade. This will be the first public parade by the boys, and it is hoped that all who possibly can will attend.

Sunday, May 16, being Empire Youth Sunday, the Air Cadets will hold a church parade to the Evangelical church at 7:30. Rev. A. M. Amacher will conduct the services.

A display of Model Aircraft, which have been built at the general shop at the school, will be shown in J. V. Bersch & Son's store windows, on Saturday.

These model aircraft are used by the Air Cadets in the study of aircraft recognition.

The boys have done some wonderful work and the display will be very interesting.

Alberta Flying Ace Reported Missing

Wing Commander Howard Blatchford, of Edmonton, son of the late Kenneth A. Blatchford, former Mayor of Edmonton, has been reported missing after air operations over enemy territory on May 3, according to word received by his mother, Mrs. K. A. Blatchford, who is at present staying at the E. G. Ranton home here.

Wing Commander Blatchford had been a terror to German pilots ever since the war started. He left Edmonton in 1936 and went to England where he joined the R.A.F. He learned to fly at Edmonton Northern Alberta. He is the son of Blatchford Field, the largest population of Canada's and airport which is a distance to go in an hour. In 1940 he made a famous effort of the battle of Britain against odds. More recently he has commanded of an R.A.F. Spitfire Squadron.

Evangelical Church Notes

"The Broad Wall" will be the theme at the 10:30 a.m. service on Sunday. The place of the church in regard to the world will be discussed.

"Give the lad a chance" will be the theme at the evening service at 7:30. The Air Cadets will march to the church in a body for the evening service. This is Empire Youth Sunday, so we extend a cordial invitation to all young people and adults to worship with us. Bethel services will be held at 2 p.m.

Ex-Admiral Of British Navy Is On Convoy Duty And Takes Orders From Young Officers

WEARING the galloned cocked-hat of a full admiral of His Majesty's Navy, Sir Charles Gordon Ramsey reluctantly pulled down his flag which had flown over the naval base at Rosyth, Scotland, and went into retirement on October 1 of last year. He was 60, full of honors, hard-won during his forty-five years of service. But the inexorable rules of the British Admiralty forced him ashore. The Navy said nice things about him, reminded every one that his pet name, "The Swell of the Ocean," had expressed the admiration of the men of his command always. And placed his name on the retired list.

In three months he was back in the thick of things. He kept bulldozing the Admiralty for something to do and finally they gave it to him—convoy duty. Now Sir Charles, still wearing his Admiral's buttons and ribbons, is a Commodore, second class, taking orders from perky young lieutenant commanders. He's shepherded three convoys across the Atlantic so far and lost but one ship. He's doing a job.

In New York, writes George Ritchie in the Sun, he parried most of the questions at a mass press conference at the British Ministry of Information with a smiling: "Oh, they naturally don't tell commodore those things" things which as an Admiral knows all about.

When he calls at a port to take over his convoy, he said, he'd "rather not know" that there are wolf-packs of submarines lurking on his course. "I try not to know those things," he grinned. "If they're there, we have to know it soon enough."

But Commodore Ramsey did say that the solution to the submarine menace is to meet them on the surface, he said, they make 20 knots. Some of the older corvettes and cutters can't make 20 knots without blowing a boiler. Hence the sub can surface in their torpedo, and run away. But not from newer, faster escort vessels.

"You don't need all the elaborations of a destroyer—these gimcracks like anti-aircraft stuff—to combat submarines," he said. "Just speed and tin cans."

What happens, Admiral, when a convoy meets a wolf-pack?" asked a bright young reporter.

"I don't know," smiled Sir Charles. "I haven't met one, so I don't know." But Sir Charles commended during the last war the Harwich destroyers; he knows right enough.

"It's your building that's going to make the difference," he said, harking back to the problem of fighting the sub. "We're building all we can but your enormous production, that's what will make the difference."

In a quiet way, without mentioning any names, Sir Charles gave his opinion of staff conferences for coordinating the war effort, meetings of admirals and generals and statesmen and the like.

"Co-ordination depends on the personalities involved," he said. "After all, we speak the same language, we're fighting for the same things. All we need to achieve complete co-operation is to understand each other, blend our personalities, as it were."

He was asked who was the youngest escort commander to whom he had to look for orders. He commands the merchant vessels but the Navy is over all charge.

"The youngest?" he asked. "We all wear differently but the youngest was a lieutenant-commander of the Royal Naval Reserve."

And the way he laughed, it was obvious the former Admiral side-by-side to King George V, and former commander of the Second Battle Squadron, R.N., had enjoyed every minute under the orders of his apple-checked superior.

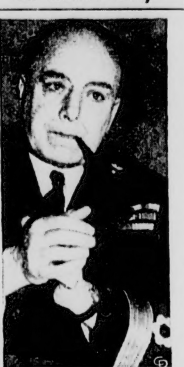

His only difficulty, he says, is adjusting his sixty-year-old stomach to the diets he's given on his flagship.

"One trip you have a Norwegian stomach, the next a Dutch," he explained. "It's a bit stiff, say, having cheese for breakfast. . . ."

He couldn't be drawn out on a question as to whether or not the British Navy, having its daily issue of the grog, enjoys its fighting more than the bone dry American Navy. He said that many of the Britons refuse the grog and take trappeneers.

Nature did a bit of perfect casting with Sir Charles. He looks today just

On Active Duty

Back in service again in the British Navy is Admiral Sir Charles Gordon Ramsey, pictured in New York City between convoy voyages. When he was recently retired after 45 years of service, he immediately volunteered for duty again and was asked to take the commission of commodore of convoys, a big step down from his previous rank. He quickly accepted; is now on active duty.

like the retired admiral, in the scenario, who wouldn't stay retired and insisted on getting back in there and doing his bit. He not only looks the part, he is.

Meat Ration Adequate

Need For Large Amount Has Been Taken For Granted

Meat rationing will bring further changes in the eating habits of Canadians but the meat ration is sufficient to meet nutritional requirements, states Dr. L. B. Pett, Director of Nutrition Services at Ottawa.

When the first settlers came to Canada they relied on the wild animals and birds that abounded in the forests to provide a large part of their food. Whether they liked it or not, the early settlers ate, from necessity, a diet in which meat played a prominent part. Their descendants took the eating of large amounts of meat for granted and successive generations developed into a race of meat lovers.

The advent of meat rationing will certainly reduce the amount of meat eaten by Canadians, especially by those in the higher income brackets, for the amount of meat eaten increases as the income rises.

The Advisory Committee on Nutrition to the Food Administration, of which Dr. Pett is a member, states that the allowance of rationed meat plus customary and available amounts of milk, cheese, eggs, fish and poultry, gives more than the amount of animal protein necessary for a person of any occupation.

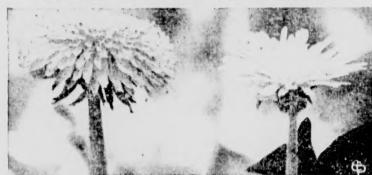

With the assurance that nutrition will not suffer as a result of meat rationing, Canadians will cheerfully adjust themselves to the changes it will bring in their normal eating habits.

Radio Riveting

Method Is Adaptable Only To Large-Scale Production

Thousands of rivets used in aircraft construction contain a small charge of explosive. When a hot iron touches a rivet the explosive is discharged and the shank mushroom. Instead of a hot iron, radio-frequency energy is suggested by du Pont engineers. The radio unit assures in instant control of temperature in the firing tip, eliminates time consumed in heating an electric iron and in frequently changing from one tip temperature to another. The method is adaptable only to large-scale production. The electric riveting iron is still preferred for many types of work, New York Times.

Russian Dandelion Yields Rubber

Allied Air Forces Are Proving Superior To Anything The Enemy Is Able To Send Against Them

(By An Air Correspondent)

IN the British Isles today the United Nations are building up fighting Air Forces which are second to none in quality and are rapidly becoming powerful in numbers as well. British and American aircraft, though designed for widely different requirements, are dovetailing together into a complete tactical picture which could not have been built up from the products of any single nation. Each Air Force is able to do a better job because of the other and the two together cover exceedingly well every sphere of air combat.

There are four basic technical requirements in air fighting today. They are: speed, climb and ceiling, range and load, and fire power.

Here in Britain in the speed category, we have operating squadrons of Supermarine Spitfire and Hawker Typhoon fighters and de Havilland Mosquito bombers. The Spitfire is the supreme example of inspired development backed by thousands of hours of operational experience in combat with the enemy. In its latest form it has a top speed of more than 400 m.p.h. Beside it now is the new Hawker Typhoon, a big, hard-hitting fighter powered with the new Napier Sabre 24-cylinder engine of more than 2,000 horsepower.

A worthy partner of these fine fighters is the Mosquito light bomber. Although it is the fastest bomber and one of the fastest aircraft of any type in the world, it has shown recently that it also possesses a fine range and a bomb load of up to 2,000 lbs. The Mosquitos flew in daylight to Berlin on January 30th and upset the Nazi programme. The loss of only one of the bombers in two raids again proved how these machines have the heels of any German fighter when operating at their best height.

In the category which calls for high rate of climb and great ceiling one of the Spitfire fighter and the American Fortress and Liberator bombers. In the Middle East the Spitfire has shown its quality by climbing to more than 50,000 feet in pursuit of a stratosphere raider, whereas over France and now over Germany the Fortress and Liberator have attacked at heights at which the enemy's defences are greatly impeded.

Range and load-carrying powers are combined supremely in the British Avro Lancaster bomber. A maximum bomb load of eight tons (18,000 lbs.) a maximum speed of nearly 3,000 m.p.h. make the Lancaster one of the outstanding aircraft of the war.

Finally there is the quality of fire power. The Boeing Fortress is the finest example in the bomber class, the Bristol Beaufighter among the two-motor aircraft and the four-cannon Spitfire among the fighters. The Fortress has a combined hitting power of nearly two million foot pounds per second measured as the muzzle energy of the guns. That is nearly five times as much as any comparable bomber with the smaller guns. The Beaufighter, designed as a long-range escort fighter and night fighter has four 22 mm. cannon and six 0.503 inch machine-guns which total more than 1½ million foot pounds per second of muzzle energy—the punch put into the shells and bullets it fires. The four-cannon Spitfire packs more than 1½ million foot pounds per second of "wallop" which is greater than any enemy fighter it can meet.

Thus on all counts the Allied Air Forces are rising superior to anything the enemy can send against them. Even so there is no time for complacency for the Germans and the Japanese are cunning engineers and may spring some surprises. Yet with our present lead we should be able in Great Britain and the U.S.A. to produce better aircraft and more aircraft than the best the Axis can do and so build up air power as the essential factor in total victory.

AN IMPORTANT DUTY

The people of Britain, living on the most uninteresting diet, have managed to stay at top efficiency because they have paid attention to good nutrition. As food shortages develop in this country, it becomes even more important that every citizen's knowledge should be the property of everyone in Canada. Saskatchewan Star-Phoenix.

Much Time Saved

Devices Thought Of By Some Women Workers Show Ingenuity

Miss Frances Perkins, United States secretary of labor, in a speech at Montreal, said that in some occupations women workers "have far outstripped the production records of men formerly doing that work."

In an address presented for delivery to the Canadian American women's committee on international relations, she said "in one east coast (United States) plant making airplane parts, women workers in three weeks' time increased production 170 per cent, over that of men who had been on the job 10 and 15 years."

One employer had said while men showed more initiative, women showed ingenuity.

"They came up with some of the strangest time-and-labor saving devices anyone ever dreamed of but the miracle is that they work," said Miss Perkins. "A woman in an aircraft factory who used to teach Latin got tired of the 11 steps that went into painting strips of color on a tube. I could do it with this-and-this-and-this," she explained, blocking out three brief steps. And she saved eight hours a plane for them."

In the United States there were 15,000,000 women at work, of whom about 1,750,000 were in munitions factories.

Those figures compared with 1-5,000,000 women working in Canada, 175,000 of them in munitions plants. But the United States' population was 11 times the size of Canada's and "we still have some distance to go in order to match the war effort of Canadian women."

Trading Rations Is Frowned Upon

The idea of "you give me half a pound of butter, and I'll give you half a pound of sugar for it" is definitely against the spirit of rationing, and considered illegal according to officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The purpose of rationing is to use as little as possible, so that the armed forces may be fed. Even though people making such a trade are acting in good faith they should remember that their ration coupons are a permit to consumption of rationed goods, if necessary.

"Exchange within the household is all right, but with your neighbor, no", is the official statement.

Meat Saved Tuesday
Stocks Battleship

Canada's first Meatless Tuesday is estimated to have saved 350,000 pounds of meat, or sufficient to stock a large battleship for five months at sea, according to an official of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Meatless Tuesdays throughout the year are expected to save 20,000,000 pounds of meat for vital purposes.

By cutting consumption of meat Canada ensures sufficient supplies for her sons in the armed forces in Great Britain as well as the British civilian population.

The World of Wheat
by H.G. L. Strange-PATRIOTIC FARMERS-

A trip throughout the prairie farms this evening time shows certain unusual things:—the absence of many young men of military age on farms; the shortage of almost any kind of hired help - male or female - and the number of old men and women, many of whom have come out of retirement, and who are struggling along to do farm work much of which is obviously beyond their physical powers.

It is all, however, a splendid tribute to the patriotism of our prairie people.

The work of food production is hard, the hours are long, prices are low, or at the best only moderate; but prairie farmers do not strike. What a contrast to some of those young men who work in industry, munition plants and mines and who we hear now and again use these times of nation stress to strike for higher wages; and on the average, industrial workers of Canada are, I calculate, 53% better off than they were at this time in the last war, and farmers are decidedly less well off.

The patriotism of our prairie farmers and their families certainly shines with a bright light.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE WORLD OF FOODSTUFFS

Argentine corn losses are estimated at 60% with yields ranging from 4½ to 12½ bushels per acre—Green bug infestation in the U.S. Southwest is reported to be the worst in 35 years—Chile's 1942-43 wheat crop estimated at 25,602,000 bushels is below the average of recent years.

Switzerland's cereal acreage has been increased from 172,970 acres in 1941 to 300,227 acres in 1942, and it is reported that a further increase may be expected this year—Broomhall reports that crop conditions in many parts of Europe are the best since the beginning of the war—The second official estimate places India's wheat acreage at approximately 2,000,000 acres above that of last year.

Ration Is Sufficient For Heaviest Work

The average Canadian used 2.5 pounds of meat every week in 1941, according to official figures. Cutting consumption to the ration allowance of about two pounds is not going to hurt anybody, according to the advisory committee on nutrition to the foods administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Their report reads: "After careful examination of the various nutritional implications of meat rationing, the committee has reached the following conclusion: A ration allowance of two pounds of meat, plus customary and available amounts of milk, eggs, cheese, fish and poultry, gives more protein from animal sources to satisfy nutritional requirements than is required for a person of any occupation."

Nutrition needs of those at home are now ranked equally with those of the forces and the Allies by the Prices Board.

"In order that the average Canadian family continue to enjoy a proper supply of food, it is necessary to campaign against waste, among other things", says K. W. Taylor, foods administrator for the Board.

... about this matter of Victory Bonds

WE'RE NOT DOING OUR SHARE

THE sale of Victory Bonds in this community since the opening of the Victory Loan has not been too encouraging.

We are not buying the new Victory Bonds to the extent that we should be buying them.

A quota was set up for this community—and from present indications we will not meet the quota.

The quota is a modest one, too—an amount that should be easy to meet—a quota that can be met without inconvenience to any if each one does what he should do.

As a matter of fact there should be no quotas in connection with the sale of Victory Bonds. The war is a matter of life and death. We haven't won the war yet. If we give the matter proper thought each one of us will buy Victory Bonds with all our available cash—and as much more—on the instalment plan—as we can pay for in the next six months. And we will scrimp to save to do this.

Harmattan Notes

The "Busy Bees" met at Mrs. Frank Jahnke's home on April 28, with five members present. The afternoon was spent tying a quilt.

It was decided that, May and June being particularly busy months on a farm, the "Bees" would meet just once each month for those two months. So, the next meeting is to be held on May 26, at the home of Mrs. E. Gourdinne. Arrangements were made to hold a whist drive at Zella School in order to make the draw for the lucky ticket.

The drive took place last Friday evening, April 30, with seven tables in play. After lunch, which was served by the "Busy Bees", the big moment came when the lucky ticket was to be drawn. Miss M. Gourdinne made the draw, which was ticket No. 14, and Mrs. V. Egging was the owner of a heavy all-wool quilt.

The "Busy Bees" would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who bought tickets on the quilt, the trustees of the school for allowing us the use of school, and all those who came to the drive. Thank you one and all.

The drive netted $4.15 and the sale of tickets $20.25, making the satisfactory total of $24.40 to the "Aid to Russia Fund".

2nd Lieut. R. M. Spooner was at home over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Oppin and Miss Oppin were visitors at the W. Jahnke home over the Easter weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ingham were Calgary visitors over Easter.

WHEAT STEM SAWFLY

Just one year ago, we emphasized the sawfly threat. We directed the attention of farmers to an excellent description of control methods. Special Pamphlet No. 59, and placed a copy in all line country elevators. Let us remember two facts. Firstly, the sawfly is still a threat and, secondly, it can be controlled. The results of research and experimentation, year by year, leading to more effective control methods.

Last year, Dr. K. M. King and Dr. C. W. Farstad, through the co-operation of farmers, conducted a series of 15 sawfly trap demonstrations. The results are full of meaning to all wheat farmers in sawfly areas. We quote from the report: "In every district except one, well-planned sawfly traps gave very worthwhile control in 1942. . . . They show clearly that good sawfly traps can be highly effective in Saskatchewan."

"In the trapped fields, as an average, less than 2 rods at the margin were sufficiently infested. . . . to result in severe losses of heads and straw. . . . The untrapped fields that in the comparable trapped ones."

Write to Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Lethbridge, Saskatchewan or Brandon for Special Pamphlet No. 59 and other information, and ask your local line elevator agent for a copy of "The Wheat Stem Sawfly."

New Potatoes 5½ Cents Pound

What is my Income?

This year thousands of farmers must pay income tax for the first time. Under such circumstances it is vitally important to maintain accurate records of farm costs and revenue, in order that income may be accurately determined.

The Royal Bank Farmers' Account Book is exactly what you need to keep accurate records of farm operations. It has been used by progressive farmers for years for just such a purpose. A copy is yours for the asking at any branch of the bank.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Experts are toying with an idea to use searchlights for street lighting in Britain after the war.

A second Canadian Red Cross Maple Leaf club was opened recently in London by the Duchess of Gloucester.

The government of neutral Sweden has let contracts to shipyards at Gthenburg for two new 7,000-ton cruisers for the national navy.

It is hoped that 500,000 British factory workers will spend their holidays this year in the fields as extra farm hands to help bring in the crop.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox said the United States navy at the year's end will be augmented by more ships than comprised the entire fleet at the end of 1942.

Plans for direct radio broadcasting from the front lines with the Canadian troops have been announced by the general manager of the CBC, Dr. James S. Thomson.

President Roosevelt has signed a bill providing for the appointment of women physicians and surgeons in the U.S. army and navy medical corps.

The BBC said that Australia can no longer supply Britain with the 75,000 tons of butter annually which help maintain Britain's weekly ration of two ounces.

It's autumn in South Africa and clocks have been put back one hour to standard time which is seven hours ahead of Canada's eastern standard time.

The Paris radio announced children will be evacuated from Paris on an extensive scale. The planned removal was believed inspired by the danger of Allied air raids.

Western Airmen Discuss A Theoretical Route

Flight Lieutenant Victor Mulhall, of Weyburn, Sask., right, and Warrant Officer Leonard Plushka, of Myraman, Alta., discuss a theoretical route for the bombing of Hamburg. Actual route cannot be shown. Mulhall, formerly a constable on special duties with the R.C.M.P., is navigation leader of an R.A.F. squadron flying giant Stirling bombers. Plushka, who is of Ukrainian descent, left his studies at Normal school, Edmonton, to join the R.C.A.F. He was pitcher on the school's baseball team, and used to pitch to catcher Bill Klufas, of Redway, Alta., also of Ukrainian descent. Klufas is now a flight sergeant navigator with another R.A.F. Stirling squadron.

Does Not Like Tanks In Spite Of Warning

But Flying Officer Buerling Could Use Their Heavy Cannon

Flying Officer George "Buz" Buerling was won the D.F.C. and other decorations by downing 29 Axis planes over Malta, might feel absolutely at home flying a Spitfire, but he doesn't think much of being a member of a tank crew. He took a ride in a tank at Camp Borden, and while nursing sundry aches and bruises, decided that every tank soldier should be awarded the V.C. "It's so close in there you can't move," he said as he stepped from a tank. "How anybody can fight with so more room than that I don't know." But, he said, there was one thing that he would like in his Spitfire and that was the heavy cannon mounted on the tank.

Some People Are Still Putting Matches In Pockets

Once again the utter disregard for the safety of others has resulted in the mailing of a large box of matches, which burst into flames in the process of handling. Despite the earnest radio appeal recently to the commencement of Canadians not to mail matches, by Postmaster General Mulock, and the repeated warnings of the press against this unwise and dangerous practice, which already has resulted in the loss or damage of mails sent the forces, one citizen's thoughtlessness has been responsible for another incident. The flimsy parcel was mailed at a point outside of Halifax. When being sorted at the Halifax Post Office by a member of the Canadian Postal Corps it flared into a blaze while in his hands, fortunately the fire was smothered before injury to the soldier or damage to other mails. The parcel consisted of a large cardboard box of matches simply wrapped in a single sheet of light paper and addressed to a soldier at a camp in Canada. The match box was without packing or protection of any kind—Post Office Bulletin.

Using Old Nails

Means Great Saving Of Steel For Purposes Of War

Making use of old nails saves steel for war purposes. Amateur carpenters should try to turn in old nails that have no possible value aside from scrap. If when purchasing nails, the customer turned in an equal poundage of scrap metal to the voluntary salvage depots, one hundred thousand tons of metal would be made available for war production, according to officials of National Salvage Headquarters in Ottawa.

There has been an increase in the annual consumption of nails from 1,300,000 tons in 1939 to nearly 2,000,000 in wartime. This has been caused by the packing of war supplies in wooden cases, building of wartime houses, and the erection of temporary storage for Canada's great grain crop last year.

HAS BECOME POPULAR

Some of the longest queues these days form outside London shops selling "Choice horse fillet steak" for human consumption at the equivalent of 25 cents a pound. The Food Minister has been asked to put it on the ration in order to save enough to feed cats and dogs.

"Charles!" She was breathless. "It's too beautiful. No, really you spoil me," she fingered the great pendant stone. "Will you put it on for me?"

He hesitated. Then his fingers glided lightly trailed her skin as he clasped it together. She was trembling. Maybe now in this moment he would take her in his arms, unless the floodgates of his heart.

Finally he stood away and looked at her. "Do you know, you're a very beautiful woman." She didn't reply. "Margaret," he asked, "are you happy?"

"Why do you ask?" The moment was gone.

"I don't know. I wondered. Often I've seen a look in your eyes as if you were thinking of someone."

He gently, "Isn't there something morbid in burying one's heart with the dead?"

There was a tinge of bitterness in her reply. "That's a strange thing for you to say." She went on with suppressed intensity. "Charles, I know you feel there really is someone and that some day you may find her. But doesn't it frighten you sometimes?"

know that the years are passing and that you may lose the capacity for happiness? You may have come so near her—perhaps on the street. You may even have met her. Charles, and not known her. It might even be someone you know. She touched his arm. "Charles, it might even be me."

He drew back. It was as if she had desecrated something dear and beloved. "Margaret," he said in kindly protest.

Her mouth twisted. She began talking wildly. "Charles, I'd like a change, a rest. I'd like to travel—maybe to Rio. It's been a strain I suppose. I'm just a little nobody you know. It's harder than I thought being the wife of Charles Rainer."

He was gazing at her in vague uneasiness. "You are ever tired. I think. Shall we talk about it in the morning?"

"In the morning," she said tonelessly. "Yes, Charles. Goodnight."

The door closed behind him. Her voice rose in a despairing whisper. "Smitty. Oh Smitty!"

Paula's trip to South America was planned and settled by the next afternoon. Several days later she was ready to leave. Smitty, along with his assistant Harrison, took her to the train.

She stood at the door of her railway carriage and he said stiltily, "Is this place where you're staying in the country—on your way?"

"Not quite." The little vine covered cottage where she and Smitty had lived would house her once more, and she would bid it a final adieu. "No, it's in Wickham, a quiet little village with a delightful old inn. I want to go there again. I was happy there once."

The train was ready to start. Harrison put the last piece of luggage into the vestibule. Now the train was moving slowly. Smitty walked along. "I wish you weren't leaving. It will seem strange not to talk things over with you."

He kissed her cheek. "You'll let me hear from you."

Of course. Goodbye Charles. Goodbye."

Her voice came back faintly once more. Then she was gone. He stood there trembling and a bit frightened. He heard Harrison speaking to him. "We'd better start for the Melbridge Cable Works, sir. The telegram was urgent."

They picked up some papers at the office and immediately boarded the train. Once in Melbridge, the business at the Cable Works was straightened out. The men had been planning strike unless their demands were met. However, Sir Charles Rainer settled the matter within minutes, not only raising wages but evening hours and bettering working conditions in general.

He was smiling vaguely as he left the place with Harrison. In the back of his mind, the cheers of the men still resounded. By the time they reached the village it was evening. There was still an air of train departure. They would see a bit of Melbridge. He and Harrison made for a small bar. Emerging into the fog a bit later Harrison discovered that they were out of cigarettes.

Smitty nodded briefly. "Well never mind there's a little tobacco shop just around the corner." Harrison glanced at him in surprise.

They bought their cigarettes but as they came outside Harrison said, "I thought you told me you'd never been in Melbridge."

"I haven't." Smitty returned indifferently. Then, all at once, he paled. Strange. He had said, "There's a little tobacco shop just around the corner." The shop was off the main street. He couldn't have seen it on his way from the station. "Harrison, I don't understand it."

Mists were swirling in his head. "I could hear bells and whistles too. A sweet hoarse out on his forehead. He put a shaking hand to a railing. "Harrison, let me think. That little shop and there's a big place here on a hill. It has wide gates and a high wall all around it."

Harrison was alarmed. "Sir, if you're ill."

"No, no, Harrison. I've got to trace it." He put his hands over his eyes. There were things, shapes at the back of his mind. "I was trying to get away from something—trying to escape. And there was a girl. . . . I started forward in excitement. 'I—I loved her. We were married.' . . . He seemed dazed. "Harrison, leave me now. I'm going up there on the hill to that building. There's something I want to know . . . must know."

Harrison stood there and watched him hurriedly off. Harrison was a good fellow and now he was terribly hurt. Poor Lady Rainer. What a blow this would be to her. She had said she would be at Wickham. He must seek her out—warn her.

It was early the next morning that he found her in the little vine covered cottage. She had been sitting at the piano softly fingering a melody, her eyes on the white mists of the hills. "Lady Rainer!" He rushed to her and warmly took her hands. "Oh, I'm so glad I've found you!"

Paula said stiltily. "Then he is here. What has happened?"

Harrison spoke almost wildly. "I think the worst of him, Lady Rainer, you know that but he doesn't realize what he's doing." Briefly, he explained the happenings after their visit to the tobaccoist's. "And it seems there was a woman and he married her. He says he must find her. It's all he seems to care about."

It's got to be stopped. It could ruin him and it would be dreadful for you." He looked at her and burst out, "I must say, you take it very calmly. When I try to imagine how you must feel."

Her voice was tender. "I don't feel anything yet—at least not much. But I keep on thinking of what you said, that he doesn't care."

Harrison was miserable. "I know. It's awful. I'm dreadfully sorry."

All at once she flung out her arms. "Oh no Harrison, it's wonderful. He'd throw over everything, his future, his ambitions, everything if he could find her. She turned and looked out of the window. "There, there he is. You see. The big willow tree on the corner? He's coming past the church, walking through that little rambling garden."

Yes, it was Smitty, moving very slowly along the roller. Paul could almost feel his heart beating. Now he had spotted the gate. It cracked a little. He was coming up the path. With shaking hand he touched the knob of the door.

It opened and she stood there. "Smitty," she said, ever so softly. He faced her. "Paula He moved forward and took her in his arms. There were tears and awe in his voice. "Paula I've found you. At last, I've found you."

He rested his cheek against her hair. The lines of his face smoothed out in a deep, quiet peace. The door to that inner room of memory had opened at last and he had found the treasure he'd sought for so many years . . . the woman he loved. The church bells softly pealed, sending their mellow note again.

(THE END)

No Special Branches

Reason There Are Fewer Women Now in Russian Army

Although recent communiques have singled out women snipers and women combat pilots in the Red Army mentioning their fighting feats, it is difficult now for women to get combat duty in the Soviet forces.

During the first year of the war there were more women in the ranks than now. At that time, only physical fitness and a statement of voluntary service were sufficient to list them for duty.

Now Red Army commanders are reluctant to accept them—although individuals manage to make their way to the front ranks.

Russia has no special branches for women, similar to the Auxiliaries in other countries.

Most women serving with the army are in the medical corps, not only in base hospitals but at front line evacuation points and even accompanying fighting squads on the battle front.

Permits Available

Giving Extra Sugar Tea And Coffee For Prisoners of War Periods

For some time now special permits have been available for Canadians sending sugar, tea and coffee, in personal parcels to next-of-kin who are prisoners of war. This is good news because it means that purchases of these goods do not cut into their own rations.

A form known as "Prisoners of War Purchase Permit" is being sent to all next-of-kin by the Department of National War Services. This form is made out in duplicate, one copy to be sent to the Ration Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in Montreal, the other to be left with the merchant from whom the rationed commodity is purchased.

Postal Censors check each parcel to prisoners to make certain that articles purchased are sent along to the boys in the prison camps.

Quantities which may be sent in any personal parcel to a prisoner of war includes up to one pound of coffee and a quarter of a pound of tea, and two pounds of sugar which may be made into hard candy.
